(Illustrated)

IN COLLECTOR'S CONDITION, BLUED AND PRACTICALLY FACTORY NEW, and the finest that we have ever had an opportunity to offer. The front sight is missing, but aside from this trifling defect, the rifle is a thing of beauty.

33. UNUSUALLY FINE AND RARE ROPER REVOLVING SHOTGUN.
With most of the original bluing, and a very early type of the revolving shot gun. Mark: "Roper Repeating Rifle Co., Amherst, Mass. Pat. Apl. 10, 1866."

34. AMERICAN REVOLUTIONARY FLINTLOCK MUSKET.

A close copy of the 1763 French Model musket, in good condition and a very rare piece. Mark: "C. P." ("Continental Property") and "D. Sweitzer" inside the plate.

The mark "C. P." (Continental Property) was only used during the early years of the American Revolution before the general adoption of the United States. Sweitzer was an old Pennsylvania gunsmith, and the splendid condition of the rare revolutionary piece bears tribute to his good workmanship. A RARE AND INTERESTING HISTORICAL MUSKET.

35. RARE TRYON RIFLE. 1842 Model.

Full brass mounted stock with patch-box in the butt; ramrod. Mark: "Tryon, U. S., Philad'a, Pa., 1847."

A few of these guns were made by this old Philadelphia firm and are now very scarce. In good condition save for superficial rust.

36. EARLY REMINGTON BREECH LOADER. L. 29 in.

Double trigger for cocking and firing; octagon barrel.

37. RARE NORTH CAROLINA PERCUSSION PEA RIFLE. L. 41 in. Cal. 28.

Octagon barrel, well rifled, half maple stock, brass and German silver mounted, double set triggers. On the right side of the stock there is a silver diamond shaped ornament and on each end a half dime is set in, one dated 1851 and the other 1854. On the other side of the stock on the raised cheer piece there is a three-cent piece set in dated 1870.

Very few of these small pea rifles are now to be had as those still in existence have been bored out from time to time, thus destroying the originality of them. This one is in extra good condition and the original leather bullet pouch and powder horn is with it. Made by S. H. Ward, Jamestown, N. C., the celebrated maker of these famous rifles.

38. U. S. FLINTLOCK RIFLE. Model 1819.

Bayonet missing, otherwise in very good condition. A scarce and valuable arm. Marked: "H. Deringer, Philada."

39. COLT REVOLVING PERCUSSION MILITARY MUSKET.

Five shots, fluted cylinder, calibre .36. 27-inch barrel. The stock has been partially split at the grip, but has been neatly repaired. The arm is superficially rusted, but could easily be worked over and put in perfect condition. These military muskets are getting very rare.

40. HALL U. S. FLINTLOCK BREECH LOADING MUSKET. patent of 1811.

The first breech loading flint lock arm adopted by the United States Government. Ramrod and bayonet missing, otherwise in very good condition. Original browning on the barrel still showing.

Rare and unusually interesting piece.

41. SCARCE FLINTLOCK MUSKET.

Marked "U. E. I. Co., 1779," denoting United East India Co. Some repairs to woodwork, and ramrod and bayonet missing, otherwise in good condition. Scarce and interesting piece.

42. RARE U. S. FLINTLOCK MUSKET.

Bayonet missing and some repairs to woodwork around lock, otherwise in very good condition. Mark: "Virginia Manufactory, Richmond, 1811."

43. MAUSER BOLT ACTION REPEATING RIFLE. Cal. 7.65 mm.

The 25-inch barrel has been turned down. The stock also has been worked making it into a very good sporting rifle. It is in fine condition, and as it is chambered for American-made ammunition, it is a very good high powered up-to-date sporting rifle. It is also fitted with a special sporting front sight and nicrometer rear peep sight. It is very light and handy and does not look unlike a Savage Rifle. Made over from Spanish model 1893 rifle.

44. MAUSER BOLT ACTION SPORTING MAGAZINE RIFLE.

24-inch round tapering barrels, calibre 8 mm, chambered for American made ammunition, which is easily obtainable. Fitted with demountable Gerard 6-power telescope sight (which is considered the best). Sling swivels, double set triggers, full checked pistol grip and raised cheek piece. Finely stocked of fancy walnut. Made by a celebrated Danzig manufacturer.

This rifle is new, has never been fired except for testing, and is considered the last word in sporting rifles. Such a rifle cost one hundred dollars before the war.

45. MAYNARD U. S. PERCUSSION PISTOL-CARBINE. Cal. .54.

With detachable shoulder stock. Made at the Springfield Armory Model 1855.

Very fine and complete. No better one has been found.

46. CONFEDERATE SHARPS CARBINE.

Usual brass mountings. The wood in the butt is slightly chipped near the heel plate, otherwise it is in exceptionally fine condition and a great rarity as but few Confederate arms have been found.

47. FINE FLINTLOCK KENTUCKY "TIGER" RIFLE. L. 38 in.

Octagon barrel. Full very fine curly maple stock. Hand-made brass thimbles, and four half moon silver ornaments each side. With unusually pretty engraved brass patch-box, and there are fourteen silver and brass ornaments beside the half moons.

THE RIFLE IS IN PERFECT CONDITION and is accompanied by the powder horn and leather hunting bag used with it. We believe this is easily the best example of this rifle that has passed through our hands. These were called "Kentucky Tigers" on account of the striped stock.

(See Frontispiece)

48. VERY FINE TELESCOPE TURKEY RIFLE.

29-inch heavy browned octagon barrel, with false muzzle and rest. Full length Malcolm telescope sight. Case-hardened back action lock, double set triggers, case-hardened spur trigger guard. Highly polished fancy walnut stock with case-hardened butt. Raised cheek piece with German silver ornament.

One of the fine old-time rifles that were very popular at turkey shoots, and were known as the "40-rod rifle". About calibre .44. With loader. It is an extremely high grade rifle, in new condition, and a very interesting relic of sporting events in by-gone days.

(See Frontispiece)

49. ORNATE EUROPEAN PERCUSSION FOWLING PIECE. L. 50 in.

This is the most ornate piece that has passed through our hands, with a stock which is of full length of mottled black walnut and the fore stock entirely covered with pearl discs and silver wire inlaid in double chain design. The mountings are of brass, hand chiseled in fancy design. The stock is entirely covered with engraved pearl ornaments, wire and brass inlay of various designs. The comb is ornamented with a very fine pierced design of brass ornamented by a crown and enclosing a helmeted knight's head. The raised cheek piece has a large pearl inlay showing engraved deer, engraved brass rabbit, small and large pearl ornaments nicely engraved and scroll design, brass, and copper ornamentation. Below this there is relief set with silver wire inlay and below this engraved pearl discs one of which shows a boar. Side plate is of brass of large size and covered with engraving showing boar, dog, and monkey. The gun is marked "Kraft" and dated 1620 on the butt plate. It has, therefore, been converted from flint lock to percussion.

In very fine condition and a piece that evidently belonged to some European dignitary.

(See Frontispiece)

50. RARE FLINTLOCK OFFICER'S HOLSTER PISTOL. L. 14½ in.

Half octagon barrel, marked "J. Kunz, Philadelphia," engraved fancy brass mountings. The trigger guard has engraved drums, flint lock gun, spears, etc. The lock is marked "Philadelphia," curly walnut stock, checked grip with engraved brass cap butt and initialed silver name plate. The fore stock has been restored and the grip split but neatly repaired so it hardly shows. Used by an officer in the War of 1812 and probably broken in conflict. Mark: "J. Kunz, Philadelphia."

A RARE AND FINELY MADE PISTOL, IN VERY GOOD CONDITION, barring the defects mentioned.

(See Frontispiece)

51. FINE ALGERIAN FLINTLOCK HORSEMAN'S PISTOL. L. 21½ in.

The trigger guard is of iron in fancy design and engraved. The lock is a hand made one of nice design and covered with scroll engraving. The side plate is of iron in filigree design, showing a great deal of hand work. The butt cap is of brass, chiselled, engraved and fitted with a fancy finial. There is some carving on the forestock.
